

The Center for Grieving Children, Teens, and Families serves young people throughout the Philadelphia Region who are dealing with serious issues of loss, grief, and trauma.

Left unaddressed, complications to normal development can arise for children, sometimes resulting in major depression, illness, failure in school, and anti-social behavior.

At the Center, we use a model of peer support, adult mentoring, and therapeutic play, enabling children to respond in constructive ways and discover skills to work and grow through their grieving process.

Healing happens and hope is rekindled. We see it everyday – in the faces of the children.

You can turn a time of tragedy and loss into an experience of healing and hope for a grieving child. Your financial support makes a real difference.
